

ANDREA LUCIANI

Andrea Luciani is an Italian singer-songwriter of English songs. He began performing at a young age during the early eighties in the legendary club Folkstudio in Rome. He was offered a conditional opportunity by Giancarlo Cesaroni, Folkstudio label to record an LP for the studio, the condition being to only sing his songs in Italian. Andrea refused this offer because he was passionate about singing in English.

In 1986 he won third place at the "Indipendenti" competition, organized by the music magazine "Fare Musica". His music has been influenced by artists such as James Taylor, Joni Mitchell, Allan Taylor, Neil Young, but above all Bruce Cockburn.

He published his first album "Songs from my Past" in 2004. It contains only one cover, dedicated to the American singer-songwriter James Taylor, called "Lo And Behold".

In 2008, he played the acoustic guitar for the soundtrack of Sabina Guzzanti's movie "Le ragioni dell'Aragosta", and also for Marco Taggiasco's "This Moment" album. In 2010 he provided vocals for, and played the acoustic guitar in Francesco Lucarelli's album "Find the Light".

You can now hear his new album titled "57" released September 2017 on his website and also iTunes, Spotify and Deezer.

Contact me:

email: andrealucianimusic@gmail.com

web: www.andrealuciani.com;
<https://www.facebook.com/andrealucianimusic/>
<https://goo.gl/NQ6bqg> (aka anothersinger)